

Turn climate risk into bottom line results

Climate Masters at Work

Sign up today to save money and cut emissions!

Who: Business and nonprofit leaders

Where: Eugene Chamber of Commerce, Sony Room

What: 20 hour low-cost training in exchange for 20 hours internal work. Take taking action to save money by reducing your business's carbon footprint in a class that will more than pay for itself in savings.

Cost: $150 and a commitment to take steps to reduce emissions in your workplace. Apply online at www.climateleadership.org by Sept. 15

The training will provide:

- Practical strategies for saving money and reducing emissions through efficiency in facilities, packaging, materials selection, transportation and more
- Financing leads
- Keys to developing a greenhouse gas emissions inventory and action plan
- Support with implementation
- Intern assistance from trained LCC Energy Management students
- Climate change basics

Sponsored by: Meyer Fund for Sustainability in Education, Eugene Water and Electric Board, Environmental Protection Agency, City of Eugene, Eugene Chamber of Commerce, Springfield Chamber of Commerce, Oasis, LCC Business Development Center

This is a research project of the University of Oregon Climate Leadership Initiative to identify successful strategies to reduce business greenhouse gas emissions.

For more information and registration:

climlead@uoregon.edu

(541) 346-0786

When: Tuesdays, October 7th – December 9th, 11a.m.-1p.m.

<http://climlead.uoregon.edu/programs/businessclimatemaster.html>

